

Cross trade traffic in some cases forms part of a major project where a huge volume of complexity may be involved however broken down to achieve a smooth transition from one point to the other. Cross trade can be part of an element of a much larger logistical move and requires a deep understanding of local procedures and cultures in countries where you are not physically based.

Mass Global Shipping provides that knowledge with its experience in handling cross trade shipments whether it is from UK to America or South Africa to India to name just a few.
